WHAT IS VKYA?

The California Indian Manpower Consortium, Inc. Vision Keepers Youth Alliance is a substance use prevention project that aims at providing a safe space for Native American youth to develop skills and knowledge necessary to impact substance use policy within their local regions. Youth participants will come together with peer-led groups where they will practice cultural activities and use this space as a platform to generate discussion on the social factors around substance use in Native American youth.

WHO IS ELIGIBLE?

Native American youth 12-24 years old residing in California.

WHAT IS VKYA'S GOALS?

To provide youth with leadership and policy advocacy skills so that they can have a positive impact on substance use prevention policies that effect them and their peers in their local regions.
